WHY COMMON SENSE IS RARE.—It is often said that no kind of sense is so rare as common sense; and this is true, simply because common sense is attainable by all far more, and is a natural gift far ano Covers, Carriage Cloths, Boots and Shoes, Sou'less, than most other traits of character. Common sense is the application of thought to common things. If some important affair occurs, people try then to think, but to very little purpose, because, not having exercised their powers lack the development necessary for great ones. Hence, thoughtless people, when forced to act in an affair of importance, blunder through it with no more chance of doing as they should than one would have of hitting a small or distant mark at a shooting-match, if previous practice had not given the power of hitting objects that are large and near .- Elements of

A recent invention of a somewhat novel character is said to be attracting attention in Paris. It is an electrogalvanic pen, called the medicinal pen. By the union of two metals capable of producing a voltaic current, which is excited by the moisture of the hand, it diffuses a healthful and curative influence over the whole body of the person using it, acting chiefly, on the nervous system. If LIES, CHARLOTTS, ICES, &c., of all kinds; CANall the benefits anticipated by the inventor of this article are realized, it will be a very valuable and unique discovery.

The estimate that is now accorded this preparation by the medical profession and by others com-petent to judge of its merits, may be seen in the fact that it has been prescribed by many of our most eminent Physicians in this country, and has attracted the attention of a celebrated profession of the Edinburg College, Scotland, by whom it has been successfully used in a career of an aggravated character.
